King George VI Jacks Edge Out Aces 38-35

CHAPTER TWELVE

"No personal consideration should stand in the way of performing a public duty."

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

When the shadow of the World War no longer shrouded the life of the young Prince Albert, he did not return to a life of ease and rest which he had earned richly. Just as soon as the world-storm swept across the horizon, he was one of the first who offered their services to their land, refusing to accept any recognition of his privileged position as son of the King. He remained in the service of the Royal Navy or the Royal Air Force throughout the whole period when Great Britain fought for the preservation of democracy and the progress of civilization. He was an active member of the crew of the Collingwood when that big battleship was engaged in the great, historical naval battle of Jutland. He came to face all the horrors of warfar although any other citizen who had such a painful illness would have been excused readily from any participation in the conflict. However, every historian will record that the young Prince Albert was an exceptionally brave young man who preferred to live through this history making episode rather than merely learn about it from history books.

This indicates a strong characteristic of the present King. From the early days of his childhood when he preferred to participate in games rather than stand by as a mere spectator to the time when he preferred to face the realities of the World War rather than enjoy the security and the pleasant surroundings of a Royal Palace, there is a definite sign that King George the Sixth looks upon his duties and responsibilities to the people as of foremost importance, regardless of what personal sacrifices, dangers or privations such obligations may involve. Consequently, when the World War ended he did not leave the active service for many months, attending to numerous duties that were obligatory in order to disband and undo the huge fighting forces that had been organized. He worked day and night in various departments of the Governmental service, spending a month in the Air Ministry alone, but he gained an intimate knowledge of various conditions. It is a very valuable experience, especially in view of the fact that the young Prince was destined to become the King in later years.

When demobilization had been completed, many young men who had been at school or college at the outbreak of hostilities or during the World War were assisted by the authorities in order that they might return to finish or complete their studies. Prince Albert decided to go on with his studies at Cambridge, and in 1919, he accompanied his brother Prince Henry, the Duke of Gloucester, to that famous place of learning, where he lived the quiet and traditional existence of an undergraduate who was trying to forget some of the unpleasantness of war.

As the days pass interest grows in the coming visit of Their Majesties to Canada and hundreds of thousands of Canadians will make every effort to at least get a glimpse of their ruling sovereigns. We believe this is the first time that a King and Queen have ever visited our fair Dominion. His Majesty has been here twice before, but this was preceding his coronation.

Coming Events

Definite word has been received from the Provincial Secretary of the Alberta A. A. A., that the 1939 Basketball playoffs will be held in Raymond March 31 and April 1. Possibly eight senior teams will participate. Watch next week's Recorder for more details.

Entries are coming in nicely for the Boxing Card to be staged next Friday night. By buying in advance you can reserve your seat at no extra cost. Seat plan at Heggie's Barber Shop.

Plan to attend the First Ward Supper and Dance next Wednesday. Supper from 6 p.m. on and all you can eat for 50c. Bring your friends and help a very worthy cause.

Friday night's basketball game between Lethbridge Aces and Raymond Union Jacks was hard one on players and fans alike. Hundreds of the spectators were nervous wrecks when the game finished because of its speed and the closeness of the score most of the way through. The Opera House roof was nearly lifted off its moorings by the shout of victory from local fans when the bell sounded the signal for full time and all knew the game was won.

Two beautiful field baskets were nearly as soon as the game started put the Aces 4 points up before Raymond and the hoop. However, Turner sank a field goal and a foul counter early in the play and the Jacks started both teams in the battle for honors of the night. After four minutes the score stood Aces 4 Raymond Jacks 6. At 10 minutes it was Aces 8, Jacks 12. 15 minutes showed Aces 11, Jacks 19, and the half tie score Aces 19, Jacks 25. A very hot pace was kept up thru the entire 20 minutes of play in the first half and the two teams battled for every point they made.

SECOND HALF ROUGH

In the second canto the burning speed of the first half was kept up, and roughness was added to it as the period proceeded and about two-thirds of the way through the parade to the showers started for personals. The infractions were practically impossible in a game where such a furious pace was kept up. Charging after the ball, in intercepting passes at the speed the boys travelled made it impossible to avoid these penalties. With 9 minutes of the second half played the score was tied at 31-31, the first time the Aces had pulled even after the Jacks obliterated the 5 point lead in the first three minutes of play. Then the fun really started.

Lethbridge decided they were going to win, Raymond decided they were not. With about five minutes to go and the score 32-38, Turner was thumbed off.

The Town Council meeting Monday evening was taken up with the School Board in a discussion of finances and policy for the coming year.

Bruce Olsen, son of Teddy Olsen who used to live here, is in the local Safeway Store, having started there the first of this week.

Elder M. T. King, of the Stake Presidency was the speaker at the First Ward Sacrament meeting Sunday night last. A number of musical numbers, both vocal and instrumental made a very interesting meeting.

The 2nd Ward Genealogical Committee under the Chairmanship of Arthur Dahl held a very enjoyable and profitable cottage meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Nilsson last Monday evening. About 30 were present and enjoyed the talks that were given. We understand that another meeting will be held next Monday evening at L. L. Palmer's.

for his fourth personal. Then Rolfsen followed in the next minute. In almost the next breath Glen "Jinx" Anderson who played a whirlwind game all night, and Donny Nilsson started a loving demonstration that sent both of them to the coolers to think it over, and almost before they were off Fairbanks committed his fourth personal and he left. This left only Nalder of the five starters still on the floor, and did the Aces turn on the heat. They pressed with all their push and the locals had to play carefully. However they kept the ball out in the middle of the floor most of the time but manoeuvred in close to sink one field goal and potted one foul to keep ahead and when the final bell went they had the ball in a passing spree in the middle of the hall that gave Raymond a three point edge on the game.

These two teams have fought many close games, and the hall was packed to the window sills in anticipation of a great struggle, and no one was disappointed. Hod Seamans, coach of the Aces has the team in fighting trim and from the first whistle they were in with all they had for the Jacks has done effective work with his boys this year, and the coming Provincial Tournament it appears, so far as the south at least is concerned, that the final decision will be between the Aces and Jacks. Of course, we may easily be mistaken. At any rate, when these two teams meet in the tournament, which is very likely to happen, there will be another hard fought and exciting game.

The players and score follows:
Aces—Dunlop 6; Hamilton: Neilson 3; Dogterom 6; Anderson 12; Donaldson 3; A. Hamilton 5; Walton. Total 35.

Jacks—Nalder 8; Shaw; Fairbanks 10; Stone; Nilsson 6; Turner 7; Rolfsen 4; Heggie 3; King; Galbraith. Total 38.

Wilson Rolfsen and Tracy Anderson had the whistles and kept the game in check calling 15 personals on each team during the course of the game.

The Rotary meeting Monday was taken up with plans for the Boy's and Father's night to be held March 27th.

The Grade Eleven had their monthly Literary today. Steele Brewerton reviewed "The Light that Failed," and refreshments were served by members of the class.

16 below Monday night, 14 below Tuesday night and about 2 below Wednesday night have kept the air quite cool and fresh so far this week. The sun gets things quite nicely warmed up during the day.

A snow storm held sway all day Sunday and well through the night. The snow was light and powdery and didn't make very much, blowing into small drifts as it fell. The weather was colder Monday when the storm let up.

Speakers at the 2nd Ward Sacrament meeting Sunday evening were Elders Art Melchin and Chas. Strong and Bert Powelson representing the Missionary Class of the Sunday School. A piano solo by Miss Alma Redd and a vocal solo by Miss Alice Court were the musical numbers.

Jacks Are Banqueted

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. A. Nilsson were host and hostess on Saturday night last to the members and partners of the Union Jacks Basketball team, and the members and partners of the Athletic Association with a few invited guests. There were 38 in attendance at the banquet, and 32 sat down to the first table. One large table was in the color scheme of the Union Jacks uniforms, which for many years have been green. The cover, china, glasses and all but the silver was green and made a real impression with the players who have carried the green to Provincial honors in eight out of the last eight Provincial contests and seem to be headed for another one this year. The other tables were in pink and pale rose.

Following the sumptuous banquet, short speeches were made by J. G. Snow, President of the Athletic Association who thanked the host and hostess for their kindness and the interest they always showed in the Funeral services for Mrs. Elsie M. Stevenson were held in the Second Ward Church Friday afternoon last with Bishop Walker in charge and Jos. McLean in charge of the singing. Besides the three hymns by the Choir, Jos. McLean sang "Gom' Home," and J. LeRoy Anderson sang "Face to Face" both requested by the family.

Speakers, all requested by the family were: Elders J. W. Evans, Nephi L. McLean, Chas. B. Strong and Bishop Walker. All of these speakers spoke of the promises of the resurrection and of the saintly life of the deceased and her husband who predeceased her many years in death. Bishop Walker especially spoke of the work of deceased in beautifying her home and surroundings and stated that from early spring until the heavy frosts in the fall, she always had beautiful blooms of flowers, bushes and so on, and also a lovely garden.

A large cortege followed the remains to the cemetery where interment was made with Christensen Bros. in charge.

Lee Brewerton, President, L. L. Palmer, R. J. Fansett, L. D. King and J.O. Hicken represented the Raymond Board of Trade Wednesday evening. They report a very enjoyable evening and state that Brigadier Pearkes was outstanding in the talk he made.

CARDSTON BEST

IDLERS 56-44

The game between the Idlers and the Cardston Maple Leafs Wednesday night had everything that goes to make a hair raising game and had the fans on their toes all through. Each team kept slipping into the lead as the game proceeded, and fans had a chance to yell for both of them as the winners during the night.

Cardwell of Cardston was the leading point getter of the game dunking the pigskin for a total of 24 points during the game. The score was tied several times and it was only in the last few minutes of play that the Teale City crew slid into the lead on the home stretch and refused to be overtaken. Rolfsen and Stoddard had the whistles for the game.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Man recognizes and rejoices in signs of spring—bluebirds, robins, woodchucks, bursting tree buds, crocuses, tulips, suckers, frogs, angle worms, north-bound geese. Probably man's late March and April activities are just as helpful and indicative to the bluebirds, woodchucks, suckers, frogs, worms, geese. Why do the geese start north? Perhaps because the scolding old goose that leads the flock hears a Southern housewife chasing her man from the porch to the backyard with a carpet to beat. The woodchuck may hear the tramp of the farmer looking over his land and his fences and think to himself in woodchuckese: "He's out wandering around, so spring must be near."

Wonder if any of the birds are wise to hats? Perhaps the robin, which makes experimental sallies northward—sometimes too early—watches her gear, and at last one sunny morning, is delighted to be able to tell his mate: "Look, Sugar, the female humans are beginning to wear spring lids." And the suckers? Oh, maybe they see peanut shells or whittlings floating downstream, and get all flustered because it's a sign humans are doing the things they do when suckers ought to be reaching the headwaters.

Man has a distinct advantage in his calendar, which birds, animals and flowers cannot read, but, speaking of things that are strictly signs, humans themselves outdo all the other living and growing things in giving evidence that winter is down and out and spring zephyrs are coming in.

JUICES

All the older folks who had origin on the farm can remember when the annual fall cider making was the sole juice production known to agriculture. To be sure, thrifty housewives boiled currants and separated the juice from the pulp by enclosing the mixtures in a bag hung over a croc. But the final product wasn't juice; it was jelly.

But invention is opening a vast new field of farm enterprises and almost everything that grows may be juiced. A bulletin recently issued by the New York State College of Agriculture lists more than a dozen fruit juices that now are on the market in bottles and tins. A surprising development akin to this is the extraction of juices of vegetables. Celery, spinach, carrot, garlic, onion, beet and lettuce furnish valuable juices, and a demand for them is growing rapidly.

The economic effects are important. Juices can be kept in usable condition much longer than the fruits and vegetables from which they are extracted. They are conveniently stored and economically distributed.

But much more important is the fact that use of these juices is recognized as of high nutritive value. Many physicians are recommending consumption of fruit and vegetable juices as a help in fortifying the human system against disease. Everything connected with this new development appears promising.

NOBODY EVER

MUDDLED THROUGH

I do not believe it. Nobody ever muddled through anything in the Great War we muddled at the start, and stuck fast in the mud. We won in the end because we had learned to use our brains better than our enemies.

Today's problems will never be solved by unstable, clever people with quick brains and nothing else. But neither will they be solved by honest stupidity. Character is a most important thing in life, but it must be illumined and directed by intelligence.

THEY'RE BASKETBALL CRAZY IN RAYMOND

One of the highlights of my southern visit was a jaunt down to Raymond, the sugar city, to see the famous Union Jacks play Lethbridge at basketball. The drive over one of the roughest roads in Alberta was worth while as the game was a thriller from start to finish. Aces jumped into an early four point lead, but Jacks quickly overcame this and at one stage of the first half had a 11 point lead. Aces rallied to take a 32-31 advantage halfway through the second half, but Jacks finished strong through the aid of snbs to win 38-35.

Raymond is the greatest basketball center in the province and the Union Jacks are almost as famous as the Edmonton Grads. Jacks have won the provincial senior men's hoop title eight consecutive years and they stand a chance to make it nine straight, although defeat last Friday would have eliminated them.

They talk, eat and sleep basketball in Raymond. In fact, it is about the only form of sport that the kids play. Six hundred basketball fans made more noise than 3500 hockey fans at Lethbridge. It was my first visit to Raymond and I hope it won't be my last for the people there are so congenial.

CANADIAN GARDEN SERVICE 1939

By Gordon Lindsay Smith DREAMS

When we buy a 10c. packet of seeds we are literally buying a dream which will come true. Unlike almost any other purchase this is only the beginning of our pleasure but the end of the expense.

It is something that will grow into beauty or usefulness, a hundred, or perhaps a thousand times more valuable than the few cents we hand over the counter of the corner store. We are not buying a hundred tiny shiny seeds, in a bright lithographed packet, but baskets of crisp tender vegetables, or tall stately plants that, in the summer will transform our backyard into a riot of color and beauty.

The seeds, while costing little, are nevertheless very important. We must be sure that they will grow into flowers or vegetables suitable to our rigorous Canadian climate. They must be from pure strains, selected and packed by reputable dealers. Some flowers which will do handsomely in the warmer climates of Southern England or the United States may prove a sore disappointment in Canada. The seeds rot in the ground here in April, or the plants may not reach blooming stage until the first frost threatens next September.

Even those seeds which we saved carefully from our own garden last fall are often a failure. They are likely to have become mixed with other flowers and poorly colored or shrunk blooms will be the result. If vegetables, strain may have become mixed or we may have unwittingly selected those from too late maturing plants.

Seed saving is a job for the experts. Best commercial seed comes from special farms operated by professionals. When we get our seed from a reliable Canadian seed house, we do not have to worry, being assured that the picture on the packet represents the final result, if we follow the simple directions and give a little care.

PLANS

In the average garden the amount of land at one's disposal is limited, but even a few square yards will give amazing results. Where space is small, it is advisable to follow a strictly informal layout with the central portion of the garden cleared of beds and shrubbery and devoted entirely to grass. Around the edges will be grouped beds of perennial and annual flowers, leading up to shrubs and vines along the walls or fence boundaries. This open centre adds to the effect of spaciousness and if the rigid boundaries are softened and partially hidden so much the better and intriguing.

Where the garden is larger, experts advocate screening off a portion by bringing forward the surrounding shrubbery at one point, or using a hedge, wall of trees so that the whole affair will not be entirely visible from any one point of observation. This will add further to that air of spaciousness and also provide a secluded corner or two for a children's swing or sandbox or possibly a seat or trellis covered table, where on hot summer days the family may enjoy outdoor meals.

KITCHEN GARDENS

In the kitchen garden it is advisable of course to keep a plentiful supply of salad material like lettuce, onions and possibly celery. The latter is set out in the garden as well started plants usually after all danger of frost is over.

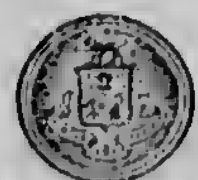

SWEET PEAS

Sweet Peas must be planted early. This develops its extensive root growth and upper vine structure when the weather is cool. If it does not get its feet well down into the soil then, when the days turn hot, is liable to wither and cease furnishing its daily quota of color and fragrance.

Planting directions are simple but important. Successful gardeners advise a trench, dug at least a foot deep, filled within two inches of the top with rich soil, mixed with well rotted manure or old leaves. Seed is planted about an inch or two deep & just as soon as the soil can be worked. Rains will wash more soil into the trench filling it up gradually and thus adding further to root growth.

When the upper plant starts to develop it will be necessary to supply some climbing support in the form of brush, strings or chicken wire. These are listed in order of preference. Flowers should appear by July and must be cut daily. This cutting and frequent heavy waterings in hot weather will encourage blooming and those long stems so desirable for cutting purposes.

Our Edmonton Letter

(T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Mar. 13.—The serious business of the legislature was scheduled, at last, for discussion beginning this week the budget debate having ended Friday night after another nine days of speech-making. The actual estimates and the legislation were ready for consideration at last.

Details of new taxation and of the government's new ideas for invading the field of private business were being awaited anxiously by the taxpayers who must pay the bills even though deprived of business, and by the whole public who are being looked upon as customers.

The system of marketing boards which the government announced in one bill is to extend to any line of business or industry which the government wants to invade or regulate or control absolutely, in the guise of reducing prices to consumers and at the same time, by some method or other, maintaining prices paid to producers. Mass buying is the aim and it remains to be seen how and whether the government through a system of marketing boards and costly administration, can overcome governmental reputation for small business ability to the point of doing business more efficiently than can men trained in business for many years. The marketing board bill contains the provisions however, that the boards can draw money from the provincial treasury when needed.

The other new venture of the government is to be fire insurance, through establishment of a government commission which like a private company is to undertake to insure clients against fire losses. Pending announcement of the bill's details, there was no indication whether the rates are to be higher or lower than those of companies now operating, although the purpose was declared to be lower rates.

It was not explained, either how the government intends to set up a fund, starting from scratch, which will be adequate to pay claims of such policyholders as it obtains. The government alleged that in Alberta the fire claims in one year amounted to only 35 per cent of the premium collected and said that the 'gross profit' to insurance companies therefore must be 5 per cent. But insurance men pointed out that all the costly protection and investigation necessary to keep down fire losses also must be paid out of premiums, in addition to ordinary administration expenses. In any 15-year period such as must be considered for accurate figures, they said, the real profit of all the companies throughout the dominion never has been higher than 7½ per cent.

I * ! * ! *

In announcing the marketing board scheme and the insurance idea, the government candidly connected both with the "treasury branch" or "credit house" idea, indicating that it is hoped to finance the projects through the public's acceptance of the "treasury vouchers" instead of cash and with the backing of taxpayers' funds in the provincial treasury. There has been no claim advanced so far that either scheme is illegal, but it has been pointed out that the history of government intervention in private business in Alberta has not been happy, and that the attempt to operate bail insurance resulted in sharply increased rates and in a financial loss so heavy that the scheme had to be dropped.

I * ! * ! *

Additional taxation of companies operating in Alberta, to help finance the government's adventures, is being provided for in the legislation now being brought down. Corporations are to pay even more than in the past—and the levies on them already have risen steeply during the past three years, as they did on individual taxpayers in the smaller income brackets. Since such companies cannot print "treasury vouchers," they must pass the taxes on to their customers in some measure.

The "temporary" additional tax on banks is to be continued; it has amounted to $105,000 a year recently, in addition to the regular bank taxes through which the provincial government collects about $250,000 as well as the share of heavy municipal and federal taxation. The banks, however, are continuing to extend to the treasury branches what co-operation the government asks, without passing judgment on their security.

HOTEL ST. REGIS
RATES $1 and $1.50 — WEEKLY and MONTHLY RATES

ter of agriculture and now Independent M.L.A. for Camrose, who was in the government during the ill-fated scrip experiment, asked in the legislature the other day where the government intended to get the real money to keep the treasury branches in operation and to keep the "vouchers" in good standing. He was not answered. While potential investors watched carefully to see how far government interference in oil development will go, the McGillivray commission set up by the government to investigate the industry in Turner Valley adjourned last week until April 12. At the same time an important judgment was handed down by the supreme court of British Columbia. It said that action of the provincial government there in trying to set prices for oil and gasoline was invalid and illegal, trespassing on the federal government's authority because the action tended to restrict trade and commerce. That decision, since it involves constitutional rights would apply to Alberta too. In the meantime, the Aberhart government's commission in Alberta has amassed 6,000 pages of evidence on many matters, some of them so technical that even imported experts could not come close to agreement on them. It was all done at the expense of Alberta taxpayers. and questions as to the cost involved were asked in the house last week, to be answered whenever the government saw fit.

WEEKLY LETTER
PREPARING FOR THE
LAMBING SEASON

Although lambing on the range does not usually commence until May, the owners of small farm flocks already will be preparing a reception for the new arrivals. Regardless of the size of flock or type of management employed, it is absolutely essential that lambing pens be provided so that mother and offspring may become acquainted without any interference from the rest of the flock.

On the range where the drop band is in the open, a ewe which is about to lamb will usually go off by herself so that lambs are not likely to get lost as in a crowd of ewes. However, even under range conditions the small pens are necessary to take care of ewes which lamb during the night and to hold refractory ewes until they can be induced to care for their lambs as a mother should.

The pens used at the Experimental Station consist simply of a 3 foot and a 4 foot panel hinged together. They are made of 1 x 4 lumber spaced 4 inches apart and are three feet high. The first pen is made by opening a pair of these hinged panels in the corner of the shed and fastening to the wall by wire or hooks. This and the succeeding pairs, arranged along the wall, make a series of 3 x 4 foot pens. After the lambing season the pens may be folded and stored away or used for temporary fencing.

The only time in the year that sheep need housing at all closely is at lambing time and it would be well to see that the lambing shed is in good repair particularly along the inside walls.

The ewes should be allowed to get plenty of exercise right up until lambing time but violent exertion such as ploughing through deep mud or jamming through gateways must be avoided. Also care is necessary at this time of year to avoid loss from ewes getting on their backs in dead furrows or hollows.

It is the aim of every sheepman to improve his breeding stock in this necessitates the keeping of records. It is not a difficult task to identify the ewes, which fail two years in succession to produce or to raise lambs, so that they may be culled in the fall. Where ear tagging is not done, ear notching or painting with a sheep branding paint may be employed. Of course, in the latter case it will be necessary to brand again immediately after the ewe is shorn.

At the Experimental Station all lambs are identified by ear tags but we have found that a number of tags are always lost within a year or two. For this reason we tattoo the lambs in addition to ear tagging to ensure positive identification throughout the animal's entire life. The next best alternative to tattooing is to use duplicate ear tags on all lambs, placing one in each ear.

Next week we will discuss some of the problems encountered at lambing time.

Beautiful weather has prevailed for the past week and the tang of spring is creeping into the air. Beautiful gardens are now blooming in mind at least, even though we may not all have the ambition to make them a reality.

WARBLE FLY CONTROL.

A community effort for the control of warble flies is emphasized in a circular to be published immediately by the Department of Agriculture.

Because warble flies do not migrate for any considerable distance, concerted effort on the part of everyone within a given area will effect almost complete eradication of this pest.

The damage done by warble flies in Canada is estimated at between seven and fourteen million dollars annually. The insect not only spoils hides, but on account of its terrifying effect on cattle it seriously reduces the yield of milk from dairy cows and retards the gains of beef cattle.

The grubs of the warble flies can be attacked by man only during the period of their development when they are imbedded in the backs of the cattle. At this time the application of derris root powder or a compound of it, either as a powder or a wash has been found most effective. The cost of treatment is remarkably low and farmers are amply repaid for undertaking control measures in this way.

It is recommended that the first treatment should be made when the lumps caused by the grubs become conspicuous on the backs of the animals, and that second and third treatments should follow at twenty-eight day intervals.

Further information on the control of warble flies may be secured from your nearest district agriculturist, or you may write direct to the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton.

the old religions have caused the ills of the world?

Some scientific words emanating from the lips of a scientific man convey the thought that man's old religions are passing, but are still reacting upon his environment, dangerously and inevitably; that sentimental and emotional factors make for race degeneration, which means that if the race is to improve, young men and women must be taught to pick their life partners according to eugenic laws.

Some old-fashioned persons believe, however, that one of the things that is wrong with the world is the fact that the old religions are passing. Possibly the old religions did not fit. But who will believe that Similar reasoning applies to the theory that love is not the proper basis for the choice of a lifetime partner. What better method has been devised? Ultra-modern theories regarding love and marriage have swept the land, but the little god laughs and continues his conquests.

The modern note, with pessimism as its key, has been sounded. Nevertheless, old-fashioned people will have to be shown.

Blinks, dear fellow, isn't it about time you repaid me that little loan?"

"My dear boy, it isn't a question of time, but of money."
